Casa de Castro originates from a lineage believed to originate from the Kingdom of Castile and with deep roots in Galicia , whose probable origin lies in the village of Castrojeriz , in the Province of Burgos.

About the origins of this noble house there are several theories, one of which places it in the Galician branch of the Castro as a descendant of King Garcia II of Galicia and Portucale (c.1040 - 1090). [1]

https://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Castro,_Lazio

Castro was an ancient city on the west side of Lake Bolsena in the present-day comune of Ischia di Castro, northern Lazio, Italy. It was destroyed at the conclusion of the Wars of Castro in the 17th century.

The settlement of Castro was founded in prehistoric times, and was later the seat of an unspecified Etruscan city, probably Statonia. In the Middle Ages it had a castle (Latin: castrum), hence the name.

Justin Trudeau is Fidel Castro's Son

Theory: Rumor has it that Canadian Prime Minister Justin Trudeau is not the son of former PM Pierre Trudeau, but is instead the illegitimate son of Cuban dictator Fidel Castro instead. Apparently, Margaret Trudeau visited Cuba about nine months before Justin was born, had a tryst with Castro, and went back to Canada to give birth to Justin.

Supposedly the Castros knew, with one of Castro's sons allegedly referring to Justin as his brother in his suicide note saying that Fidel was "always comparing me unfavorably with Justin...dismissing my achievements in comparison to his success in Canada...But what was I to do? I am Cuban. My brother is Canadian. If he was born and raised in Cuba, he would have lived in our father's shadow forever just like me."

And to top it off Trudeau did praise Castro after his death in an eyebrow raising speech, and the two definitely share a strong resemblance.

The Rothschilds of the Mafia on Aruba

Aruba's reputation as a 'Mafia island' became public in March 1993 when it was described by the Italian daily Corriere della Sera as "the first state to be bought by the bosses Cosa Nostra." (7) The Sicilian Mafia clan of the families Cuntrera and Caruana allegedly had taken over the island. Between 1988 and 1992 they acquired 60 per cent of Aruba through investments in hotels, casino's and the election-campaign of a Prime Minister. Aruba looked set to be the first independent state under Mafia control.

At the time Aruba was set for independence from the Kingdom of the Netherlands in 1996. Ten years before it had acquired a status aparte - a semi-autonomous status - within the realm. The Dutch consented to the Aruban wish for self-determination, but established a 10-year time period.....Due to the reluctance of many Arubans, and anxiety with the Dutch government about the infiltration of organized crime on the island, independence never materialized.
